Mr. Bronson Howard's dramatic compilation in five acts, entitled "Wives," drawn from Molière's "Ecole des Fennes" and "Ecole des Maris," was rought out at Daly's Theatre last evening, and chieved a popular success. The hit of the performnce was in the second act, where Miss Catherine is, as Agnes, the innocent, secured marked favor, and, helped by Mr. Fisher as Arnolphe, caused rip. ples of merriment that soon became waves of laughter to run over the house. From that moment its fortune was secured. Certainly Mr. Howard does not lack andacity in his invasion of the temple of classic French comedy. He well knows that he is not the first in the plunof Molière, and he has had such warrant as example gives in making his loot a wholesale matter. is none of your eighteenth century English eak thieves" who stole a character here and a scene there from Molière and changed the names and places as when Arnolphe became Pinchwife, and the armless intrigue of the master became nastiness unspeakable. Not at all. Mr. Howard rode boldly up to the temple of Molière, took two whole comeies, crammed them into one bag where he had some emnants of opera bouffe, and shook them out on sommants of opera bourfe, and shook them out on Mr. Daly's handsome stage. We are assured there is nothing morally wrong in all this. Mr. Boucicault says there is not, and that settles it, we suppose. He has taken two or three French plays in his time and squeezed them into one English play. Parblea! the comedies that were enjoyment enough for an audence when given one at a time, two centuries ago, cannot be expected to go as far in these intellectually gluttonous days. And then Molière himself was not particular. He could string scraps of Terence and Boccaccto together with the marvellous filaments of his own genius, and had the audacity to call them new comedies. May not Howard then pose to some purpose as the avenger of those rifled ancients? And if Molière, why not Shakespeare? Where is the man ready to cram 'Honry IV.,' 'Henry V.' and the "Morry Wives of Windsor" into one burglar's bag and call them the "novel and picturesque comedy' of 'Faistaff?' Give us the man bold enough to do this, and Mr. Howard will wish he had never been born, so low down will he appear in the predatory scale. Mark Lemon once attempted it in a small way. Courage, then, brave adapters! Give us 'situations' and lots of them; clip the dialogue as far as the longth of your shears will let you. Make the untured laugh and you need not care a continental how you make the judicious roam howling their grief along the lobies, for the latter are very few and the former are the multitude. Vice la bapatelle!

As to the manner in which Mr. Howard accomplished his fiendish purpose, we owe it to the public to say that it was done neatly enough. There were, in our judgment, some flaws in it, particularly the introduction of the opera bouffe business of the fourth act, which jarred strangely on the comedy that had gone before. The third act, too, was rather weak. It may be easily strengthened by a recurrence to Molière for some of his teking lines. We think it a weakness, too, that even in intrigues which cannot fail to be transparent to the audien Mr. Daly's handsome stage. We are assured there is nothing morally wrong in all this. Mr. Bouci-Arnolphe are, of course, exquisitely differentiated by Moliere, but in Isabelle the acute and Agnes the innocent—the repressed young ladies—the contrast is marked. The two lovers, Valère and Horacc, have in Molière a family resemblance, and hence it was not a bad thought of Mr. Howard's when he found both of them on his hands, to give the former the marplot attributes of Lelie in another of Molières comedies, "L'Etourdi," with his cunning valet as a deus ex machina. In the first act Mr. Howard fairly lays the foundation of the two intrigues. In the second and fourth he develops the intrigue of Arnolphe, and in the third and fifth that of Sganarelle, and concluding both. As we have indicated, the success of the evening was the Agnes of Miss Catherine Lewis. A demure little puss, with just such pretty naiceté and aplomb as Molière conceived she was to the letter, and the hearty recali she was given on her exit in the second act was fully deserved. Let us suggest that when again recali of the same scene she should come down the steps and repeat the curtisey to the audience which she had before given to her guardian's friends. This merely because it would be in keeping with the play. Mr. Fisher showed that his part is in an unusual line for him, but the signs were vbundant that when he tones it down and rounds it a little he can make it much stronger than last evening. Mr. Davidge, too, seemed groping a little, a little he can make it much stronger than last evening. Mr. Davidge, too, seemed groping a little, a little he can make it much stronger than last evening. Mr. Davidge, too, seemed groping a little, and the leave of the second act was little he can make it much stronger than last evening. Mr. Davidge, too, seemed groping a little, the second act he commencing on the 30th inst. In the first he will play compositions by Liszt, the second act he formed the principal features of the ballet divertissement, and Signor Arditi will direct the call make it much stronger than last evening. Mr. Davidge, too, seemed gr part is in an unusual line for him, but the signs were voundant that when he tones it down and rounds it a little he can make it much stronger than last evening. Mr. Davidge, too, seemed groping a little, although Scanarelle is well in his line. It is not easy for actors trained in modern comedy to do excellently all at once, as courtiers and high born men of the world in the times of the Grand Monarch, but Mr. Harry Lawy as Horace was easy, graceful and tuned up to the proper point of dash, Mr. Parkes was not at ease in his part of Fiermonte (the Valers of Molière), but emitted a few semi-Dundrearylisms with comic effect, and, on the whole, had the favor of the audience. Mr. Leclercq did well in the small character part of Alain, Miss Rehan was fair as isabella. We cannot go through the whole cast, but may say that the play went without a hitch, due, no doubt, to full rehearsals. The wasen scare, including three setacone, a very handsome Louis Quatorze interior, deserves praises. The costumes were rich and appropriate, and the waits were short. Miss Lewis song to a modern bouffe air was encored, but the shorus of the night watch was a failure. The other bouffe feature, the march of the King's Guard lyoung ladies!) was applauded. "Wives" is likely to run.

CHICKERING HALL-JOSEFFY.

The Joseffy matinée at Chickering Hall yesterday was not so satisfactory, either to the planist or his audience, as the evening concerts which have been given during the past week. The hall was little more than half rull when the opening piece was played, though later the audience increased in numbers. Joseffy's execution was not up to his usual standard in the first part of the programme, though with the increase in the number of his listeners he improved in his playing. He did not show yesterday that soul and inspiration which have been fore, and there was a lassitude at times in what he iid that was utterly at variance with the verve and dash he has uniformly exhibited in his playing. The audience was largely composed of exceedingly young ladies and schoolgirls, and the absence of the more critical chemics attendant on his evening con-certs may have had much to do with his evident loss of interest in his programme, though we can hardly believe that, thorough and conscientious muster that he is, so slight a cause could materially affect him.

loss of interest in his programme, though we can hardly believe that, thorough and conscientious muster that he is, so slight a cause could materially affect him.

The music of the afternoon was almost entirely a repetition of the soles of the week, Chopin and Liszt providing the body of the concert. He gave a Bourree and the "Chromatische Fantanie and Fugue" by Bach, as well as several endes of Chopin (C major, C minor, F minor). He also played the D flat prelude, A minor Mazurka and the "Andante Spianato" and "Polonaise" by the last named composer. Only two of Joseffy's own compositions were selected—his etude on Chopin's waitz in D flat and his transcription of Boccherinis" "Monuett." The Pergolese aria, the "Polka Noble," the "Valse Caprice" (Schubert-Liszt) and Liszt's arrangement of the "Spinnerfied," from Wagner's "Flying Dutchman," completed the concert, the burden of which, as was the case last evening, was almost entirely on his shoulders. Miss McCulloch sang twice, but in the two hours of the concert Joseffy was almost continually at the plane. It will readily be seen that there was little that was now in these selections, which have been criticised at length in the Henald in connection with the previous concerts. In the étude on Chopin's waitz in D flat, in the concluding passages of the prelude in D flat and in the F minor étude, Joseffy was quite himself, but of the rest of the music we can only say that, admirably as it was executed, it lacked something of his accustomed grace of expression and beauty of finish. On Tuceday he will signin appear with the Damrosch orchestra, when two concertos—Chopin's in E minor and Beethoven's in E flat—will be given in connection with Chopin's "Andante Espinato" and "Polonaise" and Liszt's "Hungarian Fantaisie." The final concert of this series will be given on Friday next.

Miss McCulloch's contributions to the entertainment were an aria from "The Barber of Seville" and Stigelli's song, "Isolina." Neither were particularly to her credit. They displayed the flex ment. Meanwhile, a due regard for true standards necessitates the statement that Miss McCulloch was not a success on Friday evening or Saturday.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES.

A new play is announced at Booth's Theatre on Tony Pastor's troupe reopen at their old place in Broadway to-morrow evening.

"Hobbies" at Haverly's Theatre is one of the most amusing performances now on the New York stage.
"The Mulligan Guard Chowder Party" this week enters on its eleventh week of success at the Theatre metropolis.

Miss Emma Thursby will give her first concert after her return from Europe, at Steinway Hall, on the 1st of December.
"Enchantment" loses none of its attractions with age, and Niblo's Garden is nearly always well filled, especially by an array of our country cousins. The doors of the New York Circus will be thrown open to-morrow evening, for the first time in New York this season, at Nos. 728 and 730 Broadway. The regular fall and winter season will be commenced at the Union Square Theatre on Tuesda vening. A new play called "French Fints" will be alternating in the atternoons through the week, except Wednesday and Saturday, with "The Merry

Fair houses have been the rule at both the Germania and Thalia theatres during the past week Both are presenting for the delectation of our German citizens excellent plays.

In addition to "Pinafore," every evening "Trial by Jury" will also be given at the Standard Theatre during the coming week. A large chorus and a full orchestra have been secured.

"David Garrick" will be produced at the Park Theatre to-morrow night, with Mr. Sothern in the title rôle, a favorite part with him. The play has been in preparation some time.

The many friends of Mr. John Gilbert will be gratified to learn that the old favorite, who has been o long ill, has "turned the corner," and is now out of danger, although yet unable to leave his bed.
"Le Petit Faust" will be played for the first time in two years at the Fifth Avenue Theatre to-morrow night, when Mile. Angele will make her resppearance. Mile. Marie has a benefit on Thursday night. Dr. Damrosch promises to give "La Damnation de Faust," the greatest of Berlioz's works, during the season. The rendering of this work will take over two hours and will require the service of solo and

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," with Mr. J. B. Studley in the title rôle and Miss Jennie Yeamans as Topsy, will be the feature at Hofele's Olympic Theatre during the coming week. It is said to be a new dramati-zation of the threadbare play.

Miss Mins Geary will give a concert on Thursday, October 23, at Steinway Hall. The entertainment will be under the auspices of the Knights of St Patrick, and some of the best concert talent in the city will assist during the evening.

Mr. Joseph Jefferson is now playing to some of the largest audiences that ever assembled in the Grand Opera House. On two nights last week there was not a "deadhead" in the house, and "Standing Room Only" was the legend at the door.

The musical event this evening is the second Patti concert at Booth's Theatre. Popular prices last Sun day attracted an immense audience, and the same result is likely to follow to night, Among the artists ere Ketten, De Munck, Rosnati and Ciampi.

Miss Adelaide Neilson's first appearance in the United States since 1876 will take place at the Park Theatre, Brooklyn, to-morrow night. She opens in Juliet. During her stay she plays in "Twelfth Night," "The Hunchback" and "As You Like It,"

Max Maretzek's English Opers Company will open in "Sleepy Hollow" at the New Academy of Music, first he will play compositions by Liszt, the seco will be devoted to selections from Chopin and Weber, and the third to Beethoven, Schumann and S. Bach. Mr. Kessels will be assisted in these enter tainments by two well known vocalists. The press elsewhere, especially of San Francisco, speak favorably of his performances.

The San Francisco Minstrels rarely fail to fill their pretty theatre with select audiences, and they always will repay the trouble of attendance no mat-ter from what distance people may come. In the piace of Mr. Wambold, who goes South for his health, they have secured the services of Mr. T. B. Nixon, a tenor well known in the profession, who is said to have an excellent ballad voice and to have been a favorite wherever he has sung. He will make his first appearance to-morrow evening.

SHIPBUILDING AT CHESTER,

LAUNCH OF ANOTHER THREE THOUSAND TON IRON STEAMER.

A new iron steamer, built for the Grinnell line, and destined to run between New York and New Orleans, was launched at Chester, Pa., yesterday. She is 324 feet long on her water line, 350 feet over all, 39 feet beam, moulded, and 23 feet 6 inches depth of hold. She is about 3,000 tons, and has two pairs of double compound engines, Baird's patent. The propeller is of the Hirsh patent, having four blades capable of being removed either singly or all together from the hub to which they are attached. The from the hub to which they are attached. The diameter of the wheel is 15 feet, mean pitch 28 feet, and will make 65 revolutions per minute. Her boilers, tubular cylindrical, are eight in number, of large proportions, the working pressure of which is eighty pounds to the square inch. The vessel has three decks, principally of iron, and the deck frames, which are of iron, are fastened in the most secure manner known in naval architecture. A speed of sixteen knots an hour is expected from the new vessel.

COLONEL CLAY'S EVIDENCE.

Colonel H. De B. Clay continued his testim before the Committee of the State Board of Chari-ties yesterday, and although the entire day was The witness finished his evidence in regard to the contract system and the manner in which the boys at the House of Refuge are worked. The third charge, relating to the punishment meted out to offenders, was then taken up and Colonel Clay described the different modes of punishment and gave num erous instances of severe castigations, entirely beyond the necessities of the occasion. In many cases blood was drawn, the skin flayed off the bodies of the victims and other bodily injuries inflicted. The witness gave it as his opinion that the punishments failed to work any reformation on account of their severity and from the fact that they were often administered in passion. The witness said that the punishments were degrading, and consequently failed as correction, rousing the animosity of the boys and making them smart under a feeling of wrong. The rattans and straps with which the boys are punished and the mode of punishment were fully described to the committee. This branch of the subject was not exhausted when an adjournment was had. at the House of Refuge are worked. The third

FULLY EXONORATED.

Justice Bixby yesterday announced that he had dismissed the charges made by Jennie Rigney against Dr. Weld, the dentist, who was accused of ction and associated with Dr. Pape in a complaint of malpractice. The evidence in the case which Justice Bixby has been a long time in collecting, was collected and sent to the dentist's connect.

Mr. Hemming, with a notice that no turther proceedings would be carried on against his client. The charge against Dr. Pape was also dismissed.

MR. SELIGMAN'S SILVER WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Seligman celebrated their silver wedding last evening at Delmonico's, entertaining between four hundred and five hundred ladies and gentlemen, including friends from other cities. The whole upper part of Delmonico's spacities. The whole upper part of Delmonico's spacious house was required to accommodate the throng, of friends and acquaintances who came to tender their congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Seligman received their frionds standing under a handsome hower of flowers, of which the pertume pervaded the whole room. The daughters of Mr. Seligman stood on one side of this bower, dressed as bridesmaids, while on the other side were three bechives, empty, and representing the absent sons, one of whom is at the University of Heidelborg, one at college in Freiburg and one in San Francisco. Among the many beautiful floral designs in the supper room was a large model of the Jewish Orphan Asylum, of which Mr. Seligman is president, sent by the children in the institution. The supper table was lavishly decorated and was, of itself, one of the chief decorations of the evening. Others were the huge orders of dancing, printed in silver on bine silk and framed in white roses, which hung from the wall. The order of dancing was arranged by Mr. Rudolph Aromson, who also composed the "Silver Wedding March" specially for this occasion.

Among the guests were prominent gentlemen well known in political, financial and social circles, and many of the most prominent society ladies of New York. A special request was made on the cards of invitation that no presents should be sent, and there were none seen. One of the pleasant incidents of the day was a visit or congratuation made to the house of Mr. Seligman in the afternoon by the children of the Jewish Orphan Anylum. The little ones came in a body at about three P. M., bringing their congratulations and clusters of flowers, and were hospitably entertained. house was required to accommodate the
